

Currently Accepting Roundup® Case Referrals Nationwide

If a case involving Roundup® weed killer crosses your desk, we hope you'll think of us. Simmons Hanly Conroy has the experience and resources necessary to hold Bayer, which purchased Monsanto in 2018, accountable for their negligence and fight for justice on behalf of your clients.

Roundup weed killer contains glyphosate, an herbicide that may be linked to non-Hodgkin's lymphoma and other serious illnesses. If your client developed cancer after being exposed to glyphosate, they may be able to file a Roundup lawsuit for compensation.

Generally speaking, your client may be eligible to file a Roundup lawsuit for compensation if they were:

- Exposed to the popular weed killer
- Diagnosed with non-Hodgkin's lymphoma or another cancer related to exposure

Even if your client has already passed away from cancer caused by Roundup, their family may still be able to file a wrongful death lawsuit to seek justice on their behalf.
